

Patient Safety Alert

Coin Button Hearing Aid Batteries

Information for patients

- Babies and young children (under five years) can suffer serious injuries if they swallow coin/button batteries or poke them into their nose or ears.
- If anyone in your household has a condition or disability that might lead them to swallow or put a coin/button battery up their nose, your hearing aid must be fitted with a tamper proof battery drawer. Tell your Audiologist.

How should hearing aid batteries be stored?

- All hearing aids and their batteries, used or new, must be stored out of reach and in a safe place, so that they cannot be swallowed.
- All hearing aid batteries must be stored at a room temperature of between 10-25°C.
- Make sure that you turn off your hearing aid when not using it.
- Do not carry spare hearing aid batteries or your hearing aid in your bag. If your hearing aid gets close to a metal object (keys or coins) it can short-circuit and stop working.

What do I do if a battery is swallowed?

- If a battery is swallowed, get medical help straight away. Call 111 or 999.

How do I get rid of used hearing aid batteries?

- Recycle your old hearing aid batteries at a local supermarket or pharmacy. They often have a disposal box. You can also drop your used batteries off at your local Audiology department.
