

Going to the Emergency Department at Whittington Hospital – what happens with your feeding tube?

Doctors and nurses will help you with the main reason you are at the Emergency Department

If your feeding tube is not working, a doctor or nurse will call the specialists for help

Tube feeding cannot start in the Emergency Department

Emergency Department staff are not trained to do tube feeding – it is not safe for the Emergency Department staff to give feed

You might get a drip in the Emergency Department if you need fluids

If you are admitted to a ward and your tube is safe to use, tube feeding can be started

You might start a different feed to your usual feed until a Dietitian sees you

Contact us

For compliments, complaints or concerns, contact PALS on 020 72 88 55 51

Or email whh-tr.PALS@nhs.net

For large print, audio or translated copies, email

whh-tr.patient-information@nhs.net

Where to find us

Whittington Health NHS Trust

Magdala Avenue

London N19 5NF

020 72 72 30 70

Document information

Date published: 23/01/2026 | Review date: 23/01/2028 | Ref: EIM/Nut&Diet/GEDWHWHFT/01-ER

© Whittington Health NHS Trust. Please recycle.