A patient's guide

.... caring for you

The community paediatric service is for children and young people up to 18 years old or up to 19 years old, if still attending school, who have developmental problems or disabilities and associate health problems.

What does the service do?

Specialist paediatricians undertake assessments, investigations, diagnosis and management of children and young people with a range of developmental difficulties and disabilities.

An example of conditions that children and young people have who we see include cerebral palsy, autism or down syndrome.

Where there are ongoing medical problems we provide follow-up for children and young people to plan management and interventions. If required we will discuss with you whether you would like to be referred onto other specialists for further support.

We also see children for a paediatric assessment as part of the statutory assessment process which determines what level of extra support a child needs in their education.

Why are you being sent an appointment?

If this is your first contact with us, we will have received a referral from one of the professionals known to your child or young person who should have discussed this with you.

We accept referrals from a wide range of professionals working with children which includes GPs, health visitors, school health advisers, SENCOs, speech and language therapists, physiotherapists, occupational therapists, dieticians, education and nursery staff, hospital paediatricians and clinical psychologists.

Specialist children's services

We aim to offer a seamless service to children, young people and families. In doing so we work closely with all other professionals working with your child and where appropriate we offer team around the child meetings.
